

Who can assemble and fit, or remove, whole kitchens and other furnishings? Who has the expertise to plan professional moving jobs? Who delivers furniture and appliances? Who can install the cooking range and the washing machine correctly and safely? Who packs up the furniture when customers cannot organise it themselves? As a kitchen and furniture moving specialist, you are a hands-on all-rounder in the professional moving services industry.

Kitchen and furniture moving specialist m/f

Job description:

Being a kitchen and furniture moving specialist means that you won't be stuck at the office all day. Working for a professional moving company, you will be packing and relocating entire family households, doctor's practices, laboratories or museum contents. This may be within the same city, to another part of Germany or even other countries. Moving company personnel also deliver new pieces to furniture stores or customers' residences.

The 3-year training programme is designed to make apprentices proficient in the use and handling of tools and materials, qualifying them to assemble and install furnishings and transport them safely from the warehouse to their destination. This also encompasses woodworking, electrical installation, as well as the processing of billing and delivery documents.

Requirements:

Applicants to the training programme for kitchen and furniture moving specialists should be physically fit.

Companies are seeking applicants with technical and manual aptitude, who have a service-oriented work ethic, are reliable and enjoy interacting with other people on a respectful basis.

Remuneration:

Trainees are paid by a graded scale according to their year of training. In the first year, kitchen and furniture moving apprentices can expect to earn approx. EUR 650 per month. This varies from one company to another and also depends on applicable collective wage agreements.
